

CASE STUDY

Translating data into action.

Parkinson's UK, a national charity wanted to understand how Parkinson's patients were currently using hospital services so they could provide informed support to local teams.

Many Parkinson's patients were being admitted to hospitals with issues that had not been managed effectively and the charity believed the condition could be managed better.

Quantis identified the common reasons for hospital admission in Parkinson's which enabled the charity to structure its research agenda around addressing the issues.

Choosing the Quantis Dashboard solution, Parkinson's UK analysed real-world hospital admissions data covering length of stay and prescribing costs, to enable CCGs to accurately benchmark their performance across a range of criteria in the management of Parkinson's.
